AT THE ORDINARY GENERAL MEETING

The following new member was received by the PRESIDENT prior to the meeting and signed the Register :—

NEW HONORARY MEMBER.

On a motion by the PRESIDENT on behalf of the Council, the Right Hon. JAMES ANDREWS, Lord Chief Justice of Northern Ireland, was unanimously elected an Honorary Member of the Institution.

A DISCUSSION, opened by Mr. C. GERALD EVE (Past-President) followed by Mr. GEOFFREY L. VIGERS (Vice-President) took place on

THE COMPENSATION (DEFENCE). ACT, 1939.

Mr. C. GERALD EVE (Past President), opening the discussion, confined himself almost entirely to Section 2 (1) (a)—the basis upon which compensation rental was to be computed—which was, in his view, more difficult than the rest of the Act put together. The fact that the Act was an unjust measure, justified surveyors in getting as much by way of rent under Section 2 (1) (a) as possible. They would get nothing for loss of tenant's profit; accordingly, they must study Section 2 (1) (a) and see how much they could wring from it in their clients' interests.

Section 2 (1) (a) provided that the rent was to be that which might reasonably be expected to be payable by a tenant in occupation during the period for which possession was retained under a lease, granted immediately before that period, whereby the tenant undertook repairing and insuring covenants. The important word there was "a"—"a tenant in occupation," not necessarily the tenant; and the reasonably expected rent would naturally be the highest rent which could be expected. If one might expect one man to pay £80 and another man to pay £100, obviously £100 was a reasonably expected rent.

He therefore propounded two axioms: first that it was a tenant, not the tenant, and secondly that a reasonably expected rent would include the highest rent that could reasonably be expected. A third point was that the property need not necessarily be used by the tenant or by a tenant for its present purpose. As there was a tenant in occupation, the landlord could be envisaged as saying to the sitting tenant: "You will be surprised to hear that your tenancy ends to-night, because I am about to offer you a fresh tenancy." The sitting tenant then was reluctant to leave, because he was a sitting tenant, surrounded by his goodwill, his skilled staff, his clients or his customers. He would not wish to see all dispersed; therefore that reluctant sitting tenant would pay a rent in excess of the normal rental. That was not really open to challenge, although it had been challenged.

The next point was the main point of dispute. When fixing the reasonable rent between landlord and tenant, was this tenant deemed to take on the new tenancy during the period for which possession was retained, or under a lease for some unspecified term? The official view, apparently, was that it was the latter. With that he disagreed, and the point was very important. Take the reluctance of a sitting tenant to disperse, say, his hotel business and his skilled staff. If it were only a question of the period during which possession was retained—say one, two or three years—the tenant might well say: “Rather than disperse the whole of my business and my skilled staff, I do not mind paying a high rent. I might even be willing to pay over the whole of my profits in the shape of rent for a year or two, rather than disperse my business and get it together again.” If, however, as was apparently the official view, it was necessary to visualise a lease for a term of years which had to be surmised, a term of years in consonance with the class of property in question—perhaps eighty years in the case of a building estate, perhaps three months in the case of a cottage, and perhaps twenty-one years in the case of an hotel into which the tenant might have to put £30,000 for furniture and equipment—obviously no tenant would be prepared to carry on except at a normal profit for 21 years. It was important, therefore, to ask what was the law? Was this notional conception of rent under Section 2 (1) (a) the reasonably expected rent from a tenant, the rent to be more or less wrung out of a reluctant tenant for a year or two, or was it for a long term? He was not a lawyer, but perhaps a lawyer would speak that evening.

In no circumstances should one accept the argument that it was necessary to visualise a long lease. A lease could be for a year, and, he thought, for less than a year. If the official view were right that the lease was to be for whatever length of term might be surmised, was it credible that Parliament, even when hustling a great many Bills through on the same night, would say “under a lease,” without a notion of the length of the lease and remembering that a lease was void for want of certainty, when they had put in the forefront of the section “rent which might reasonably be expected to be payable by a tenant in occupation of the land during the period for which possession was retained”? It would be seen how important it was to adhere to the first reading, that the lease was for the term during which possession was retained. In that way the reluctant tenant would pay far more than the normal rent rather than be dispossessed.

Which of those two views of the law was right hinged on whether notionally the tenant could ask for a tenancy during the period for which possession was retained; with the right to determine the tenancy by telegram, as it were, or whether the lease was to be for 21 years, with both sides knowing that on the last day of the 21 years the tenant would be leaving. Which was the notional conception? If a tenant said: “I want to be able to go when I like and to remain as long as I like,” the landlord would say: “Very well, but you must pay for it.” As a rule, with this class of property I should expect at least six months' notice, and if you want to be able to send a telegram to say that you have gone, I am afraid that you must pay a fine of six months' rent, which, spread over three years, would be 17 per cent." If a man paid £100 a year for three years and was required to pay £50 down as a fine, that, spread over three years, would be 17 per cent. To the normal rent, therefore, no less an addition than, say, 17 per cent. should be made for the extraordinary benefit to the tenant of granting him an occupation lease to go when he liked and to stay as long as he liked.

Those two factors, therefore, viz. : the reluctance of the tenant to disperse his business and his right to choose when he would go, must make for a higher rent and both were largely nullified if the official view was correct that a long lease had to be envisaged.

The Section referred to a "tenant in occupation." There he was, and therefore the property was not vacant and to let, as in rating. It was now settled case law in rating, as shown by the House of Lords decision in the Southern Railway case, that when a hereditament was rated it must be deemed to be vacant and to let. That was not the case under Section 2 (1) (a) of the Compensation (Defence) Act, under which the sitting tenant was there ; he had not to be found and put in, but was there with a going concern around him.

One might take the case of a small hotel surrounded by flats in the same block. Nearly all the persons in those flats ate at the hotel restaurant. A certain percentage of the flats was vacant. Each had its own occupier ; where there was in fact no occupier, the owner was deemed to be the occupier under the Act. The owner sent in a claim for Flat No. 217 and said " I want £100, the normal rent." The other side might say : " Oh, but it is empty." The owner would reply : " It is not. There is a ' tenant in occupation.' Come in and be introduced ! "

Personally, he could not emphasise too much that in his view Section 2 (1) (a) was a mere notional conception—which had nothing to do with facts—of what was the reasonably expected rent of (in the instance given) Flat No. 217 by a tenant in occupation. If Parliament said that the tenant was in occupation, he must be in occupation, and from occupational motives. There might be a row of six empty houses in the East Coast town of X, in a dangerous area, and the other side might say : " You will never let these during the war." The answer was : " That may be so, but what has that to do with Section 2 (1) (a) ? What is the rent to be reasonably expected from these six gentlemen inside ? Come inside and be introduced ! "

That might sound comical, but when it was remembered what the Act did not give—no compensation for loss of business to any tenant—one was entitled to claim for anything that could be stretched out of Section 2 (1) (a).

When one had to form an estimation of rent by reference to the receipts and expenses, or the profits basis, he suggested first of all that one should not recalculate the rates on the new rental value, and rightly so, because it was not to be expected that a rating authority during the war would raise the assessment, nor could they while the premises were in the occupation of the Crown. Secondly, it was necessary to go through the repairs and renewals of the last few years and see which of those should be cut out as non-recurring or a capital item. Then one came to what he was afraid was often called “the swag”—the difference between receipts and expenses—and one had to say: “How much of that shall I give to the tenant and how much to the landlord?”

The first thing was the tenant's capital, which ought to be kept reasonably low. It did not follow that if a certain class of hotel had a certain class of furniture in it, that was the sort of furniture which a tenant might put in it; he might put in something cheaper or more modern with better or equal success. When one had the resulting balance as rent for the landlord, or the normal rent, one had to say: “If that is the normal rent in normal circumstances, what is the notional rent under Section 2 (1) (a), with the reluctance of the sitting tenant to go out and the right which he is given of being able to send a telegram to say that he has gone or of staying as long as he likes”? Since it was necessary to deal with those problems in the case of such varied properties as hotels, aerodromes, public schools, racecourses, greyhound tracks, colleges, building land, country residences and holiday camps, it would be seen what a problem there was in studying Section 2 (1) (a). Personally, he thought it was true to say that the reluctance of a tenant to go was largely measured by the profits he was making.

With regard to fire insurance, he understood that if the owner of a property had his fire insurance policy endorsed over to the Government department concerned, namely, that they had an interest in it, and undertook in writing to relieve the Government department from any liability under Section 2 (1) (b) as regards fire, the Government department would then undertake to bear the premium.

He had already said that if a tenant could go at a moment's notice he ought to pay at least six months' rent, depending on the class of property, in lieu of notice, because the landlord had to decorate the property and do it up and was losing rent. Probably the official view would recognise that, but the question was, where to get it in. For the purpose of making a claim, he thought it could be done only under Section 2 (1) (a) by increasing the rent which was being asked by spreading this "fine" over the estimated term; but if one were negotiating and settling a case with the Government department concerned one might find it possible to get a settlement under Section 2 (1) (b), i.e., damage, in that while one was repairing and decorating one was losing rent. The advantage of getting it under Section 2 (1) (b) was that there was no income tax at 7s. 6d. in the £ to be deducted, whereas under Section 2 (1) (a) there was. He thought the only safe thing to do, however, was to claim it under 2 (1) (a) and try to settle it under 2 (1) (b), which, of course, was a fairer home for it.

Mr. GEOFFREY L. VIGERS (Vice-President) said that when following Mr. Gerald Eve he felt inclined to adopt the attitude common in the High Court of saying: "I desire to adopt the arguments of my learned friend," and to sit down and say no more. But he did not look on the Act from quite the same angle as Mr. Gerald Eve, possibly because his outlook had been affected by the fact that he had spent much of his life in dispossessing people of their property.

He would like to deal with one problem which arose on the question of taking possession of property.

The machinery which enabled the Government departments and the local authorities to take possession of property was not to be found in the Act under consideration. They took possession under Defence Regulation 51. There was nothing in any of the Acts of Parliament or Regulations which called for the service of a notice before taking possession; all that they needed to do was to go into possession of the premises. He felt that that was of some importance because clearly the requisitioning authority would have no power to take part only of any premises were it not for the fact that the Act contained words which said that "land" meant "parts of houses and buildings." It was an established and well-known fact that under the existing law as a whole it was not possible to take part only of a premises without special powers, and he suggested that if it had not been for those words they could not take part only of premises; and he suggested, too, that if they wanted to take part only they must serve a notice of requisition. Otherwise they would be held to be in possession of the whole premises and of the curtilage and the lands occupied with it.

That seemed important, because there would be some members present who had had experience of various authorities taking possession of parts of premises and claiming that they were not in occupation, for instance, of the garden attached to a house. Further, it would be found that those who went into possession of premises after serving a so-called billeting notice for eight or ten people then proceeded to occupy most of the house or building. He would suggest that if they had not served a notice other than the billeting notice, and if they did occupy a substantial proportion of the rest of the building, then, unless they had served a notice specifying that part, they were in fact in possession of the whole premises.

As to Section 2 (1) (a), he agreed with Mr. Gerald Eve's interpretation. He thought that a return had been made, in effect, to what were known as the Lands Clauses terms. In the old days of the Lands Clauses Act it was said that where land was acquired the price paid for it was the value to the owner in his possession for his use. The Act of 1919 made an alteration and said that what was paid was the value in the open market to a willing seller. There was now another form of definition; it was said that for hiring purposes it was the rent which a tenant in occupation would pay. He suggested that in principle, therefore, the Government had gone back to the interpretation which was placed on the power to acquire land under the Lands Clauses Act, namely the value to the owner; and to that extent he agreed with Mr. Gerald Eve and would say that one had to look at the premises and say to oneself: "(1) What is the rent of those premises on lease for the period of the occupation? (2) How much more would the tenant in occupation pay for it? (3) How much more would he pay if he was the person who could stop just as long as he wanted to stop and who could go whenever he liked, the landlord having no power in any circumstances to turn him out?" That last was one of the most material parts of the provisions, because it was clear that a tenant of, say, shop premises, if he could stop just as long as it suited him to stop and could go when it was no longer profitable to stay, would pay a higher rent than if he were bound to stop for a certain period or if the landlord had power to turn him out.

It had been suggested that this rent had to be fixed in relation to a period, and even that the rent could not be much, because the tenancy was only from day to day, and therefore the tenant would not pay much for the right to occupy from day to day. The day to day suggestion, no doubt, had arisen because of a provision dealing with the period during which the rent accrued; but the period during which the rent accrued had nothing to do with the period for which the premises were taken. It was merely the means of calculating the rent.

He would like, having passed for the moment from Section 2 (1) (a), to say something about Section 3, which dealt with the doing of works on land without possession as such being taken. Under that Section the sum which could be obtained had reference to the diminution in the annual value of the premises, which was a different definition from that found in Section 2. He thought that there might be some argument under Section 3 as to what were "works" under the meaning of that Section. It had been suggested—he did not agree himself, but he might be wrong—by the Ministry of Agriculture that ploughing was "works" within the meaning of Section 3 (1), and that if possession of land was taken for the purpose of ploughing it up under sub-section 8 during the emergency there was in fact no rent payable at all. Furthermore, in an Order issued by the Minister of Agriculture dealing with allotments the Minister informed local authorities that they might pay a rent for the land taken for this purpose, but that they should not pay more than the rental value for agricultural purposes. Personally, he thought that that Order was ultra vires in so far as it referred to a limitation in the amount of rent. It was also stated in a circular issued by the Ministry that where possession of land was taken for allotment purposes and the land was vacant the authorities were not liable to pay any rent at all, but in his view that was not in accordance with the provisions of the statute.

Mr. W. STANLEY EDGSON (Fellow) said that any surveyor acting for the acquiring authority or for the owner must have found great difficulty in interpreting Section 2 (1) (a). He thought it was necessary to link up 2 (1) (a) with 2 (1) (b), and they were in fact linked by that important conjunction "and."

Section 2 (1) (b) dealt with fair wear and tear. He would go further than Mr. Gerald Eve and say that in actual practice a tenant always paid a higher rent if excluded from the full repairing clauses to the extent of fair wear and tear. That was an important point on which he would like to hear the views of other members.

Mr. K. E. B. GLENNY (Fellow) expressed the view that there was perhaps a tendency to become a little too involved in dealing with Section 2 (1) (a). It might be possible to read into the Section the old definition of willing tenant and willing lessor. The period of the lease which had to be adopted was, of course, a relevant point, but he thought the interpretation might be that it was necessary to assume a lease for a term appropriate to the class of property, which would obviously vary in different cases. It would be necessary to start with the normal term of letting for the class of property. Having established that and the rent appropriate to it, it was then necessary to grant a lease with virtually a perpetual option to determine and, having in mind an occupation of possibly one, two or three years, according to the military dispositions of the district and the demand for the property from other quarters, to ask the augmented rent which a willing lessor would accept for the property subject to a lease with that option.

The question of severance had been raised. There seemed to be a tendency to emphasise the tenant's side of the case and to forget that there was also a willing lessor, and that if a tenant wished to take part possession of a property it was within the power of the landlord to decline to let. If the prospective tenant still persisted, the landlord still had his full bargaining powers—assuming a willing tenant and a willing lessor—to say: “If I let this partial property, the rent must be commensurate with the loss which I shall sustain on the rest of it.” Therefore the assumption that the War Department had to pay only for that part of the property which it occupied was completely overcome by the bargaining power of the landlord.

A word might be said on the question of appreciation of values. Section 2 (1) (a) (i) stated that “no account shall be taken of any appreciation of values due to the emergency.” That, however, did not mean that it was necessary to disregard entirely any value created by the emergency. In the case of an area in which considerable evacuation had taken place, the obvious effect on shop values would be in the direction of a reduction in rent. If, on the other hand, as a result of the emergency, 10,000 troops were brought into the town, it was more than possible that rental values would rise again. He had heard it argued that any rise due to the presence of those troops must be disregarded, but surely that was not so, up to the point of pre-war values. One could offset war losses by emergency gains, although it was not possible to go beyond the pre-war level of values.

Mr. W. E. A. BULL (Fellow) found difficulty in applying the ingenious interpretation of Section 2 (1) (a) put forward by Mr. Gerald Eve. It was true, as Mr. Eve had said, that where there was an empty property a tenant in occupation had to be imagined, but it was difficult to see how that could be expanded into the assertion that in the case of a row of empty properties in an East Coast resort in a danger area, each was worth more than before the war. Although it could properly be said to the Government valuer when going to a particular property: “We must imagine a tenant in occupation,” could it be said: “We must imagine tenants in occupation of all these empty properties”? If that could not be said, the obvious reply was: “Yes, we have a tenant in occupation here, but if you ask him a farthing more than he ought to pay he will move into the empty property next door.” That seemed to be the difficulty, and if Mr. Eve could help him on that he would be grateful.

Mr. B. M. WARNER (Fellow) remarked that Mr. Gerald Eve had said the Government might decide that some kind of rent should considerably greater than it would otherwise have been. Since under the Landlord and Tenant War Damage Act and other legislation there was no immediate compensation for any damage to buildings caused by hostilities, he thought that serious extra risk was something which the tenant should watch for and claim.

Mr. H. V. CHEW (Fellow) remarked that the taking into account of profits in connection with the estimation of rent due to the owner might act as a two-edged sword, in that one could visualise the case of a garage being requisitioned where the trade of the garage might have been sadly depreciated by the emergency; and by the emergency he meant not the fact of the requisitioning but the fact of the war itself. In estimating the rent, it might be found necessary to take into account reduced profits; in other words, but for the requisitioning the owner might even be prepared to accept less rent for the property than if he were continuing to occupy it. It would be interesting to hear Mr. Eve's opinion on that point.

Mr. NOEL DEAN (Fellow) pointed out that in the answer by Captain Crookshank which had been quoted, the words used by the latter were to the effect that profits would be taken into consideration in assessing rent. It seemed to him that Mr. Bigham had read something into that answer which was not intended, and that the answer was in fact a clever parliamentary reply. It might be said that naturally profits had to be taken into consideration in arriving at the rent of business premises, but the rent which the occupying authority would be prepared to pay might not bear any relationship to the actual loss of profits.

He would also like to comment on the answer given by the Chancellor of the Exchequer to the Hotels and Restaurants Association, in which the Chancellor said that hotel and restaurant keepers would be treated with the greatest possible consideration within the framework of the Act. He submitted that the Act itself was wrong, and that it was impossible to treat anyone with consideration if it were interpreted literally. It seemed that either the Act was deliberately framed to exclude any compensation whatever for loss of profits, or, if that were not the intention, that it was extremely badly drafted. In either event it required drastic amendment, and he submitted that the Institution and kindred professional bodies should exercise their utmost endeavours to secure its amendment. The Act seemed to bring into being principles which were directly contrary to all the accepted principles of the past, and it might conceivably have the effect of partial confiscation.

Mr. W. F. THORPE (Fellow) said that if the rent was to be based on a lease, why was it necessary in Section 2 (1) (b) to refer to fair wear and tear. A simple example would be the case of a house which was perfectly decorated when the troops took possession. In settling with the authorities one arrived at the rent on the basis of a full repairing lease ; if the rent was £100 a year and the landlord did the repairs, one would take off, perhaps, £15 and say that the rent would be £85 a year, with the occupiers doing all the repairs. According to Section 2 (1) (b), however, when assessing damage no account was to be taken of fair wear and tear, and if when the troops left, the papers, for example, had faded, the landlord would then be at a loss. It would be interesting to hear the views of other speakers on that matter.

Mr. GUY BISCOE (Fellow) suggested that a certain amount of confused thinking existed on the question of loss of profits. He found that if a detailed statement of claim was sent to the authorities, which resembled in the least a statement of account, it was frequently returned with the comment that loss of profits could not be claimed. He had never had any intention of claiming loss of profits within the framework of the Act, but had been trying to decide the amount of rent which a sitting tenant could reasonably have afforded to pay having regard to the trading potentialities of the premises. He thought that that was the whole point so far as the basis of claim for business premises was concerned.

Much had been said about Section 2 (1) (a), but he would like to say a few words about 2 (1) (b). He had recently found in one of the London boroughs, where buildings had been released, that although the claim had been sent in for damage under Section 2 (1) (b), the authority proposed to do the work themselves and not pay " a sum equal to the cost of making good any damage." What the result would be he did not know, but he had protested that the wording of the Act only provided for a cash payment by the authority. It might well be that if the authorities were going to insist on making damage good, many owners would be penalised to a considerable extent. It might not be wise for an owner under present conditions to spend money in repairing or redecorating his premises ; he might prefer to put the money in the bank and wait for better times. That point therefore had to be watched carefully.

There was another important point under Section 2 (1) (b) ; it arose mainly in the case of basements, church crypts, and similar premises taken over for air raid shelters. In the majority of cases they were strutted up with steel or wooden struts, and he had had one case where the strutting had caused a serious fracture in the building. In that case he knew what had happened, and could make a claim under Section 2 (1) (b) ; but if the struts were in position for some years and the upper floors were being carried on considerably greater than it would otherwise have been. Since under the Landlord and Tenant War Damage Act and other legislation there was no immediate compensation for any damage to buildings caused by hostilities, he thought that serious extra risk was something which the tenant should watch for and claim.

Mr. H. V. CHEW (Fellow) remarked that the taking into account of profits in connection with the estimation of rent due to the owner might act as a two-edged sword, in that one could visualise the case of a garage being requisitioned where the trade of the garage might have been sadly depreciated by the emergency; and by the emergency he meant not the fact of the requisitioning but the fact of the war itself. In estimating the rent, it might be found necessary to take into account reduced profits; in other words, but for the requisitioning the owner might even be prepared to accept less rent for the property than if he were continuing to occupy it. It would be interesting to hear Mr. Eve's opinion on that point.

Mr. NOEL DEAN (Fellow) pointed out that in the answer by Captain Crookshank which had been quoted, the words used by the latter were to the effect that profits would be taken into consideration in assessing rent. It seemed to him that Mr. Bigham had read something into that answer which was not intended, and that the answer was in fact a clever parliamentary reply. It might be said that naturally profits had to be taken into consideration in arriving at the rent of business premises, but the rent which the occupying authority would be prepared to pay might not bear any relationship to the actual loss of profits.

He would also like to comment on the answer given by the Chancellor of the Exchequer to the Hotels and Restaurants Association, in which the Chancellor said that hotel and restaurant keepers would be treated with the greatest possible consideration within the framework of the Act. He submitted that the Act itself was wrong, and that it was impossible to treat anyone with consideration if it were interpreted literally. It seemed that either the Act was deliberately framed to exclude any compensation whatever for loss of profits, or, if that were not the intention, that it was extremely badly drafted. In either event it required drastic amendment, and he submitted that the Institution and kindred professional bodies should exercise their utmost endeavours to secure its amendment. The Act seemed to bring into being principles which were directly contrary to all the accepted principles of the past, and it might conceivably have the effect of partial confiscation.

Mr. W. F. THORPE (Fellow) said that if the rent was to be based on a lease, why was it necessary in Section 2 (1) (b) to refer to fair wear and tear. A simple example would be the case of a house which was perfectly decorated when the troops took possession. In settling with the authorities one arrived at the rent on the basis of a full repairing lease ; if the rent was £100 a year and the landlord did the repairs, one would take off, perhaps, £15 and say that the rent would be £85 a year, with the occupiers doing all the repairs. According to Section 2 (1) (b), however, when assessing damage no account was to be taken of fair wear and tear, and if when the troops left, the papers, for example, had faded, the landlord would then be at a loss. It would be interesting to hear the views of other speakers on that matter.

In the majority of cases they were strutted up with steel or wooden struts, and he had had one case where the strutting had caused a serious fracture in the building. In that case he knew what had happened, and could make a claim under Section 2 (1) (b) ; but if the struts were in position for some years and the upper floors were being carried on those struts—which was what it amounted to in some cases—what was going to happen when the struts were removed? The buildings, particularly if on London clay, would probably have moved during the period, and the effect of removing the struts might not be apparent for some considerable time. He did not know whether it was possible to safeguard against that; when he had tried to do so he was faced with the fact that the authority could not enter into any agreement the terms of which were more onerous than those permitted by the Compensation (Defence) Act. It would be interesting to have Mr. Eve's opinion on that point.

A matter of considerable interest was that of fees. On claim form No. 2 which was the form of claim for the cost of making good damage, a valuation of the premises was required. The reason for this was clear, but the question was—who was going to pay for it? In the case of a large building it was an undertaking to make a valuation, and the client would naturally resent being asked for a valuation fee. Whether the authorities would eventually pay the fee under Section 2 (1) (d) he did not know, but he thought it was worth trying. In many cases, it was, in fact irrelevant, because the amount of damage could not possibly exceed the value of the premises. He did not propose to fill in the particulars in such cases.

Returning to Section 2 (1) (a) and to the vexed question of the uncertain term, probably the wisest thing at the present time, if the client could afford to do it, was not to make a settlement. He was not settling any more cases than he could avoid; he merely asked for payments on account and hoped that someone else would be the first to appeal to the tribunal! There was no doubt that the question would have to be referred to the tribunal sooner or later.

Mr. MAYNARD TOMSON (Fellow) dealing with the question of fees, said that in one or two cases with which he had dealt the Command Paymaster had eventually sent his draft or cheque to the client, stating it to be for "rent, insurance, fees, etc.". The client received the cheque and perhaps, not knowing what the surveyor's fees were, put the money into the bank, so that in the cases to which he referred his own firm had not yet seen the money. He had written to the Command Paymaster asking whether he would give details, but so far had had no acknowledgment.

Mr. J. C. LEONARD (Visitor) hoped that neither Mr. Eve nor any of the subsequent speakers would blame him for discourtesy if he said that he could not help bringing to mind the words of the poet who complained, it would be remembered, that when young he did eagerly frequent doctor and sage and heard great argument about it and about ; but evermore came out by that same door wherein he went. Personally, he must confess that the more he looked at Section 2 (1) (a) the more he felt like the poet.

There were at any rate three possible meanings to Section 2 (1) (a) : there was, first of all, what the draughtsman who drew the Section meant to say ; secondly, there was what some court or tribunal would eventually interpret him to have meant to say ; lastly, there was what surveyors would like him to have meant to say. It seemed to him that they were concerned, in some measure at any rate, with what they would like the draughtsman to have meant to say, because they did not yet know for certain what some high authority would eventually decide that he had meant, and if one did not ask plentifully one would not receive even moderately. Whereas he could see that difficulties were, or might be, raised to some of Mr. Eve's suggestions, particularly on the thorny problem of the length of the lease, it seemed to him that Mr. Eve had produced the most ingenious argument he had so far heard for enlarging the provision to its maximum dimension.

He had always thought that the most valuable asset a tenant could have was the right to break his lease at any time and that the landlord should not have a corresponding right ; because whenever one took the tenancy of premises one was torn between the desire for the maximum security, the maximum length of tenure that one might want, and the fear that circumstances might so conspire that one might not want to continue so long after all. If a tenant had the right to determine at any moment and the landlord did not have the corresponding right, the tenant had the best of both worlds. If the tribunal and the courts could be persuaded to interpret the Act as meaning that the rent had to be such as a tenant would pay for a lease containing such a proviso he thought they would do very well, and he suggested that they should try to persuade the courts of that for the time being.

There were, of course, other difficulties. He had an unpleasant suspicion that the draughtsman inserted those words " under a lease," not with any desire to benefit owners, but with an eye to cutting down the compensation. It would be said that the draughtsman meant to say this : imagine an ordinary commercial tenant in the middle of a long lease. Take him out of the way and put the Government down in his place and just make the Government pay the rent the tenant was paying. Then at the end of the emergency take the Government out and put the tenant back. That was the kind of argument they would be up against, but for the reasons which he had given he thought, for the present at any rate, until the matter was decided for them by wiser minds, they should contend for the principles laid down by Mr. Eve.

Mr. CYRIL STONE (Fellow) referring to country residences, said he had a case where a large house which was occupied by the owner and which had not been let—except possibly for a short time furnished—had been requisitioned by the authorities. It had been suggested on behalf of the latter that unless it was possible to show the last rent or a rent which had been obtained for the premises, the rateable value was binding. He had pointed out that there was no question of rateable value whatever in the Act, and the question was then raised of the reduction of the assessment. It had been reduced a year or two previously on appeal because the owner had no intention of letting. It was a somewhat low rateable value, and he was now told that he should not ask for any rent beyond the rateable value. He would like to know whether Mr. Eve considered the contention reasonable or whether he thought he should put forward other arguments to show what the rent should be.

Mr. ROBERT COBB (Past President) said that nearly all agricultural tenancies were based on the landlord doing a certain amount of repairs, but under the Compensation (Defence) Act the rent to be paid was an amount which assumed the tenant would do all the repairs, and therefore it must obviously be less than the rent which the tenant was paying. If the tenant were taken out of his whole farm, he would be losing on the balance of what he got from the Government and what he paid to his landlord.

On the question of severance, there was nothing in the Act enabling one to quote this, but he thought Mr. Eve had solved that problem by his reference to tenants. If a farmer was the tenant of the adjacent land, he would be prepared to give an extra rent for the land which was requisitioned, and therefore would give a higher rent than the rate per acre; it was on that basis that one should work in dealing with severance.

Another small point was that the properties were taken on a day-to-day basis, so that if a farmer lost his farm until, say, the end of June or the middle of July, he would get no compensation for the fallow time between July and September when he began his new year; that must be dealt with either under severance or in some other way.

Lastly, he uttered a word of warning on one point. He and many others paid their Schedule A tax on agricultural estates themselves and not via the tenant. When they received their income tax demand they would therefore check it with last year's and pay the lump sum. Under the Compensation (Defence) Act, however, the Government, in paying the tenant, deducted the income tax; so that if they were not careful they would find themselves, where land was taken out of a property, paying the full tax on that farm, only to discover later that the tenant would deduct the amount of the tax when he paid his rent.

Mr. J. H. B. HEATH (Professional Associate) referring to the question of billeting orders raised by Mr. Vigers, advised anyone who was proposing to claim, in respect of premises occupied under a billeting order, something in excess of the payments allowed, to read the billeting order carefully and to make sure that there were grounds for making a further claim. The billeting order specified that certain facilities should be provided, and if anyone provided additional facilities without any requisition notice he might be said to be doing it voluntarily and would not get any compensation therefor.

Mr. P. A. TREGEAR (Fellow) said it would be useful to have some clearer direction as to the heads under which expenses could be paid. The tenant could claim for moving out, but how much, if anything, could he claim for moving in later on ?

Mr. H. A. R. PILLEY (Fellow), speaking as one who was engaged during the last war in dealing with claims for occupation and damage to premises in the important neighbourhood of Dover, said he would like to know how the word "reasonably" was to be interpreted. He had acquired many places for drifters and assessed compensation for damage as the result of user, under the Defence of the Realm Acts, and he concluded that "reasonably" was to be interpreted in the following way ; if there were half a dozen houses empty in a certain district before the war commenced, he had to assume that the landlord would not claim anything at all, and he allowed nothing for rent. With regard to user and any damage accruing, he confined it absolutely to what he might call acts of waste, rather than any damage accruing by normal user. That was the interpretation given for a period of years, and to him "reasonably" under D.O.R.A. meant that no compensation whatever was paid for rent in such cases. Many of the premises on the front at Dover had been empty for years and were in a derelict condition, and yet they were taken over by the Admiralty for the occupation of the drifters. It was simply said : " These premises have been empty for years, no-one would reasonably take them, and therefore we do not give any compensation."

Mr. C. GERALD EVE then wound up the discussion and replied to the various points made. Mr. Edgson, he said, wanted to bracket 2 (1) (a) and 2 (1) (b) to get rid of the iniquity of the " fair wear and tear " clause, but personally he did not think that that could be done, because (a) said plainly that the rent to be fixed was on a full repairing basis, and (b) had nothing to do with (a), because they were each separate sums which had to be aggregated.

* Mr. Glenny imported the willing tenant and willing lessor. There was no word about a willing lessor and a willing lessee in Section 2 (1) (a), and personally he did not want to invent it if it was not there. Mr. Glenny suggested that under this Section one should assume a lease for a term referable to the class of property, and then write into that lease, by looking at the forefront of 2 (1) (a), an option in perpetuity to the tenant during that lease to terminate it; but if the tenant had the right to terminate during the lease at any moment, one was back very much where one started, that the tenant could go at any time. "Where part only is taken," said Mr. Glenny, "do not forget the willing lessor." But why should one remember him? There was nothing about it in the Act. Personally, he agreed with Mr. Glenny in his theory of picking out the plum. If a tenant said "I want part of this house; I should like the dining room and the kitchen," what was the reasonably expected rent that a man should pay for such a choice? The tenant would be told "If you take the dining room and the kitchen, I cannot eat or cook, and so you had better pay rent for the whole house." Would not that be what was reasonably to be expected? If a tenant wanted to take any part of a property which destroyed the use of the remainder, the reasonably expected rent between man and man for such a weird application would be a rent almost equivalent to the rent of the whole. Indeed, if a tenant took a country house and carefully refrained from taking the kitchen garden and the glass, he should pay more rent, because he was absolved from keeping them up.

That reminded him of the suggestion made by one speaker who advocated letting as little as one could, and had taken as an example a country house where the kitchen garden was not taken over. Personally, he had always insisted on the kitchen garden being taken over; he did not want to have to pay three gardeners for perhaps five years, and he would prefer to claim damages at the end of the war for any harm that had been done. A tenant would pay a greater rent for a house and part of the garden than he would pay for a house with too large a garden and a great deal of glass which cost money to keep up. The Government avoided expense by taking the lesser quantity if it took the house and not all the garden, and a reasonably expected rent would be a reasonable rent bearing in mind that the tenant was avoiding having to keep up things that most people wished to avoid having to keep up.

Mr. Glenny referred to appreciation in values and to the first proviso to Section 2 (1). Personally, he agreed that what one had to do was to shut out any increased value due to the emergency. That meant that if the Government were among the tenants one could think of who would take the place during the war, one was entitled to include them among one's possible tenants, but when one came to fix the rent one must not charge them a greater sum than some other person would pay. The rent must not be increased because demand or prices were increased on account of the emergency, and if 10,000 troops were put in a town and all the shop rents went up, the whole of those increased rents had to be shut out. He did not think that there could be any doubt about that.

Mr. Bull had characterised his interpretation as ingenious, but it was really the plain law of Section 2 (1) (a). Mr. Bull spoke about the six empty houses and had rather put into his mouth the words that those empty houses were worth more than before the war. He had not said that, but he did say that if during the war those houses would not let, that was not the basis of the rent under Section 2 (1) (a); the basis was what a tenant in occupation would give, and there was someone in there. The tenant must be assumed to have gone in from occupational motives, because if the tenant had no motive he would not go in and pay rent. Mr. Bull had suggested that the tenant could go next door, but that was not the case because there was assumed to be a tenant in that house also.

Mr. Warner had dealt with the point of paying rent for a further term after the de-requisitioning. He said that a Government valuer told him it would be paid for, and he believed that it was perfectly correct that all the Government valuers were willing to pay that, but it must be remembered that they could not extend the Act by paying a rent after the period for which possession was taken. It was possible to claim it and to get it only by putting on an extra rent during the period for which possession was retained, as in the case of his example of the £50 fine spread yearly over the three years, or by getting it under Section 2 (1) (b) as damage.

Mr. Bigham had dealt with the question of profits taken into account. It was axiomatic that one of the definitions of rent was that it was the sum that a man would pay in order to carry on a gainful trade. That was perfectly true of all commercial properties. If one rented a fishing or a deer forest it was of course not true, but for commercial property rent was very largely governed by the profits to be made. It must not be forgotten, however, that at times and for a time a trader would be willing to pay rent in order to carry on at a gainful loss so as to be able, when the clock struck the right hour, to be there "on the ground floor," all ready to begin, with all his skilled staff. Everyone would know of properties which were being carried on at a loss in the hope that the silver lining would presently appear. It did not follow that if a company was making a loss it was not doing it deliberately, and the rent of a property was not nil because there was no immediate profit; the ultimate goal was profit and the rent was what the tenant would pay to gain a profit either now or ultimately.

On the question of inclusive rental, if he had a flat let at a rent of £100 and £40 for rates and the flat was requisitioned, requisitioning by the Government did not in any way interfere with the privity of contract, the bargain, that is to say, between landlord and tenant. The tenancy still persisted. Whether the landlord could in law ask the tenant to pay him £100 and £40 for rates when no rates were payable, the property being in the occupation of the Crown, was a doubtful point. He could only say that it was immoral, although he knew that it was being done. He hoped that it would not meet with any success but it had nothing to do with the Compensation (Defence) Act, i.e., with the claim of the owner or occupier against the Crown. It was a matter of the position of the landlord and tenant inter se, and was therefore, he thought, outside the scope of the present discussion. He very much doubted whether the courts would make a tenant pay £40 to reimburse the landlord for rates which were not exigible.

With regard to insurance, Mr. Bigham said that owing to the greater risk when troops were brought into a building, the fire risk premium for the building went up. Personally, however, he understood that all the insurance companies had agreed not to increase the rate of insurance owing to military requisition as regards buildings; but with regard to chattels, all the insurance companies and Lloyd's refused to insure the contents not requisitioned but stored on part of the requisitioned premises against larceny and theft. That was not surprising.

Mr. Chew said that the profits basis might be dangerous in the case of garages because there were no profits. That was quite true; the profits basis was dangerous for any property where a profit was not being made. But, as he had said a moment ago, for a time and at times a man would pay a rent in order to look forward to the silver lining, and that was the only hope which he could throw out.

Mr. Thorpe said that the provision regarding fair wear and tear was very unfair, and there would be general agreement with that. Although the rent under Section 2 (1) (a) was reduced to rock bottom on a full repairing lease basis, nevertheless when one came to the question of damage it was just the other way. There could be no doubt, however, as to what the Act said.

Mr. Biscoe had remarked that when a claim was put in for rent based on accounts on the profits basis, many valuers returned it and said " You do not seem to understand that there is nothing in this Act about compensation for loss of profit." They did not seem to understand the difference between profit and the rent that a man would pay in order to make a profit. If there was £1,000 profit, one might pay £500 rent to earn the other £500. The valuers would learn in time, of course.

Mr. Biscoe also said that under Section 2 (1) (b) some authorities were seeking to make good the damage. He did not understand whether they were doing that after they had gone out of possession or not. Under Section 2 (1) (b) they had to pay for damage except in so far as the damage had been made good during the period of occupation by a person acting on behalf of His Majesty. If they were making good during their requisition all was well, but if they were trying to do so afterwards he thought that would be evidence that they had not gone out of occupation. If, however, they had clearly gone out of occupation and it was admitted on all sides that they had de-requisitioned and gone out and they wanted to come back again to make good the damage, he would say that they were trespassers.

On the question of air raid precautions and the strutting of basements and so on, there was a question of whether when the struts were removed the superstructure would fall down. It might be better to wait six months under Section 11 before sending in a claim, and even after that it was possible to get an extension of time before sending the claim in. With a further extension of time for, say, three months, it would be possible to hold a watching brief for nine months. That was all the help that he could give on that point. On the question of the valuation, to which the same speaker referred, for the purpose of supporting a claim under Section 2 (1) (b), if the authorities were willing to pay for it it might by all means be made, but, if not, he thought that it was a most unnecessary demand to make, and he certainly should not advise any surveyor to comply with it unless an undertaking was given that under Section 2 (1) (d) it should be regarded as an expense incurred by direction.

Mr. Tomson complained that a cheque for an inclusive amount, covering his own fees, had been sent to the client. That was in fact the correct procedure under Section 2 (5), where it was clearly stated: " Any compensation under paragraph (d) of sub-section (1) of this Section shall accrue due at the time when the expenses in respect of which the compensation is payable are incurred, and shall be paid to the person by whom or on whose behalf those expenses were incurred." The authorities were quite right, therefore, in sending the cheque to the client, although he agreed that it might be a very unfortunate procedure.

Sir Harriss Firth had been very helpful to all surveyors throughout his life when they were on the other side of the table from him, and he would like to take the opportunity, on behalf of all surveyors, of paying a tribute to the unbiased way in which Sir Harriss held the fort as Chief Valuer to the Inland Revenue. So far as it was possible to put a proper construction on the Compensation (Defence) Act, he was sure that Sir Harriss would endeavour to give the benefit of doubt to the taxpayer, as indeed the courts were supposed to do in all tax cases.

Mr. Cyril Stone referred to residences, and said that one of the many residences for which he acted as agent had been commandeered, and it had been suggested to him that the rateable value was a suitable answer to Section 2 (1) (a). They would have been wasting their time that evening if Mr. Stone had not appreciated the necessity of assuming that there was a sitting tenant in the residence, that that tenant could not sit without furniture, and therefore of assuming that that someone was living in the mansion in question. He himself had been concerned in a case where a lady with grown-up sons and daughters had her house taken away from her, a house which she had just bought and furnished, and the question arose of where she was to go. She went to another country place and said: "Will anyone let me come here during the period for which possession is retained of my own house?" That was the acid test of what sort of rent a tenant would be expected to pay in those circumstances. Everyone said with one accord: "Not likely!" She said: "I would rather stay where I am, and if you want to know what I as a sitting tenant would pay rather than move I will tell you what I have had to spend up to date. I have had to take my sons and daughters to London to find temporary quarters for them, and I am roaming about trying to find somewhere to settle." Assuming that her rateable value was £350, which in fact it was, she would have been about £1,000 in pocket if she had agreed to pay £1,000 a year instead of £350. That really brought home what was the reasonably expected rent that a sitting tenant would pay rather than be dispossessed of the house. This lady had had to move her horses and her cars, and there was nowhere to which she could go for the period for which possession was retained. She could not afford to take two leases. The whole question had nothing to do with rateable value; no two things could be further apart.

He would like to thank Mr. Cobb for what he had said. Personally, it had never occurred to him that if a landlord paid Schedule A direct on the whole estate while one of his tenants was having Schedule A deducted from his rent, it would be paid twice. He thoroughly agreed with Mr. Cobb on his other point and thought that everyone realised that the rent which the farmer would get for his farm in theory was the rent which he would pay if he had a full repairing lease—which no farmer had ever had in England in the last half-century—and therefore in theory the rent that the farmer was going to get should be less than the rent which he would have to pay. That would be iniquitous ; but he did not think that in practice it would happen ; he thought the authorities would stretch a point there.

Mr. Pilley had asked what was the meaning of “ reasonably,” and said that under D.O.R.A. it was nil. No doubt Mr. Pilley was right !

The PRESIDENT said that the discussion had been a very useful and interesting one, and would be of the greatest value to practitioners. The success of the meeting was due in no small measure to the excellent way in which the subject had been introduced by Mr. Eve and Mr. Vigers, to whom he would like to propose a very hearty vote of thanks.

The vote of thanks was carried with acclamation, and the proceedings then terminated.

The following written communication has been received from Mr. REGINALD DAVEY, M.SC., F.L.A.S. (Fellow) :—

When buildings are requisitioned, the compensation rent is calculated on the assumption of a full repairing lease, although in fact the assumption is false. It has been suggested that there are two grounds for a claim for payment of a rent in excess of the normal rent on a repairing lease. The tenant is assumed to be “ in occupation,” so that it may be argued that the premises have a special value to him, solely on this account. That a sitting tenant is generally able to offer the highest rent is common experience. The tenant is taken to hold the premises “ during the period for which possession of the land is retained in the exercise of emergency powers.” For a tenancy of so indefinite a length it is surely permissible to assume that a landlord would require, and a tenant be willing to pay, a rent in excess of normal.

Where a part of a house or building is requisitioned, there is no direct authority in the Act to justify a claim in respect of damage due to severance. The suggestion that a case can be made out for taking severance into account when assessing the rent is interesting. To take an extreme example, the ground floor of a factory is requisitioned, so that the upper floors are left on the hands of the owner or occupier. The upper floors are unlettable alone. Is it not fair to assume that a tenant in occupation of the ground floor "might reasonably be expected" to pay a rent which would compensate the owner for having the upper floors on his hands?

Unfortunately there seems no way in which trade loss can be brought into the calculation. It has been responsibly stated in Parliament and elsewhere that in fact trade loss is taken into account, because the process of arriving at the rent of business premises involves consideration of the figures of trade done or capable of being done on the premises. Let us be quite clear on this point. The rent is what is left after the working expenses, overheads, and tenant's share have been deducted from the gross profit. The trade loss is the tenant's share itself. To imply that because trade figures enter into a calculation of the rent, therefore the occupier is at least partly compensated for loss of his living, is pure nonsense. The occupier is receiving a sum probably less than the rent he pays or would pay to his landlord in respect of the building requisitioned; and he must continue to pay the rent he has agreed to under his tenancy agreement.

Where exclusive possession is not taken, but work is done on land, then the compensation takes the form of periodic payments equal to the "diminution of the annual value of the land ascribable to the doing of the work," but leaving out questions of amenity. Liability for these payments can be abrogated by the authority either restoring the land, or serving a notice electing to make a lump sum discharge. In the case of incomplete restoration, or of receipt of a notice, a claim may be made for compensation equal to the "depreciation in the value of the claimant's estate or interest."

Both these definitions bear a marked resemblance to the "reduction in market value" basis found in the Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935. Experience of claims under this Act suggests that there are two methods of arriving at the diminution or depreciation. The obvious procedure is to make two separate valuations, before and after, and to claim the difference. The virtue of simplicity is marred by the difficulty of securing any pretence at accuracy, and of producing figures that will withstand cross-examination. The alternative is to build up the "after" valuation by means of deductions from the "before" valuation. As to which is the best method, opinions will be divided. Probably the prudent surveyor will use both methods so that the one may act as a check upon the other.

An important aspect of the claim is that in every case it is to be assumed that "the land cannot be restored to the condition in which it would be but for the doing of the work." Probably drafted to prevent large claims based on the cost of restoration, it operates both as an incentive to the authority to restore as completely as possible, and as an indication that the effect on the annual value of the premises is to be the basis of claim. Take, as an example, some fattening pasture in Leicestershire that has been ploughed under an Order from the War Agricultural Executive Committee. The claim will not be the cost of seed and sowing in a horse crop of corn, for the presumption is that restoration is impossible. The claim will be based on the capitalised difference between the rental value of the farm with the land as arable, and what it would have been had the land remained as grass. In this particular instance the difference between the claims arrived at in the two ways mentioned* will be substantial, for the seed bill and sowing is but a tithe of the cost of restoring land to grass.

THE SEVENTY-SECOND ANNUAL REPORT OF THE COUNCIL.

Session 1939-40.

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING.

Monday, 27th May, 1940.

The Session 1939-1940 has been overshadowed by the war in which the British Empire is now engaged, and the adjustment of peace-time activities to war conditions has inevitably had its effect on all British institutions. Restrictions on private building, on loans, and on public improvement schemes, coupled with the general uncertainties and risks of a state of hostilities, have had a serious effect on the normal business of the profession. Many hundreds of younger chartered surveyors are serving with the armed forces, and many more are rendering service to the State in their professional capacities in direct connection with the prosecution of the war. In the latter category must be included the large number of firms in all parts of the country which are engaged directly on war work of all kinds—the organisation of increased food production, the building of camps, requisitioning, A.R.P. construction, to mention some activities only.

Some peace-time activities, however, remain. The war has not removed, but has rather increased, the need for the efficient management of land, and war-time regulations have brought with them many new and unfamiliar problems for the surveyor. The Civil Defence Act, 1939, and the Landlord and Tenant (War Damage) Act, 1939, were great legislative experiments, necessitated by the presence of the air peril, which have created or may create new kinds of relationship between lessors and lessees; the Compensation (Defence) Act in operation engages surveyors almost to the exclusion of other professions; evacuation and the black-out have brought new rating and valuation problems in their train, not the least of which is the disturbance of values caused by the shifting of population as a result of war causes.

The possibility of air raids on centres of population which had been presaged by official announcements, and the precautions taken by the Government during the months preceding the war, naturally evoked certain decisions by the Council. As the result of a report by a special committee, the Council, in June, 1939, gave certain instructions which were to be carried into effect if war occurred. These included the suspension of social functions, of general meetings and the examinations, the formation of a Commission of the Council to carry on the business of the Institution, and the publication of the Journal quarterly instead of monthly.

The unexpected course of the war during its early months soon led to a review of some of these measures. Committee meetings were resumed in November, 1939, and in the same month the suspension of the examinations was removed ; the whole Council met in December, February, April and May, the intervening business being transacted by the Commission of the Council ; the monthly issue of the Journal was resumed.

As in the last war, the Council decided that members giving up their professional practice in order to enter the armed forces should be absolved from liability for their membership subscriptions. Their names are, therefore, being retained in the List of Members without payment of their subscription until their return to civil life.

On the outbreak of war the Secretary, Lt.-Col. A. H. Killick was recalled to the Army, and in his absence on service Mr. H. G. Evans, Assistant Secretary, is officiating as Acting Secretary.

The Council wish to place on record their sincere thanks to the Rt. Hon. Lord Brocket for having permitted the storage on one of his estates of certain books and records belonging to the Institution.

It is with deep regret that the Council have to refer to the loss which they suffered in the death of Mr. H. F. Cobb, C.B.E., who had represented the London (South-Western) Branch on the Council since 1930.

The retiring Members of Council at the end of last session were Messrs. T. Peirson Frank, Dryland Haslam and E. J. Silcock (Fellows), to whom the sincere thanks of the Institution are due for the many services rendered during their years of office, both on the Council and on many committees.

The new Members of Council who took office during the period under review were Messrs. A. G. Harfield, Laurence Lanham, O.B.E., and W. L. Wade-Dalton (Fellows).

National Service.

According to information available at the date of preparation of this report, 1,046 members, probationers and students of the Institution are serving with His Majesty's Forces. They are to be found in all three Services and in different arms, including, especially, the Corps of Royal Engineers and the Royal Artillery. A chartered surveyor, serving as a paymaster sub-lieutenant in H.M.S. "Exeter," was present and was wounded in the Battle of the River Plate on 13th December, 1939. The Directorate of Hirings, British Expeditionary Force, which deals with all matters relating to accommodation for our forces in France, was largely staffed in consultation with the Institution.

The Institution, at the request of the War Office, has assisted in tracing men already in the army with a knowledge of land surveying, so that they could be transferred to Railway Transportation units of the Royal Engineers, where their special knowledge was required. Recommendations were also made, at War Office request, for commissions in Royal Engineer construction companies.

Apart from military service, many members are holding appointments in a civil capacity with the Admiralty, the War Office and the Air Ministry, as land officers and compensation officers. Those departments have also recruited a large number of their additional quantity surveying and building construction staff from members of the Institution. Members are also holding wartime appointments as assistant lands commissioners to the Ministry of Agriculture, and estate surveyors with the Office of Works and Ministry of Supply. These appointments were made through the Central Register for National Service, referred to in another section of this report, in which over 5,500 names of chartered surveyors are registered.

On the question of the employment of firms by the Government for wartime work, a letter over the President's signature was sent to all government departments who were likely to require the services of surveyors, urging that wherever practicable private firms should be utilised. Conversations ensued between the President and the Board of Inland Revenue in an endeavour to secure the appointment of firms for the assessment of air raid damage. The tenor of these conversations and the correspondence which passed between the Institution and the Department was reported in the Journal for November, 1939—January, 1940.

The President was invited to serve on the Advisory Committee appointed by the Chancellor of the Exchequer to advise as to the general principles on which war damage to property should be assessed by the Compensation Board to be set up for the purpose of the Government compensation scheme. The committee, under the Chairmanship of Mr. Andrewes Uthwatt, has issued an interim and final report, the general principles of which have in each case been accepted by His Majesty's Government. The interim report made recommendations for the assessment of damage to immovable property and certain types of movable property in private ownership: the final report dealt with other classes of movable property, mainly livestock, growing crops and goods excluded from the Government's commodity insurance scheme.

The Institution is represented by Mr. Christopher Chart on the Building Technical Advisory Committee appointed by the Ministry of Home Security (A.R.P. Department) to consider the technical aspects of civil defence as affecting the building industry. At the request of this committee, the Institution invited members to volunteer their services under a scheme for the provision of advice on A.R.P. matters to householders whose incomes were above the limit entitling them to the free issue of "Anderson" shelters. Over seven hundred members offered their services.

The President has been appointed to serve on the Constructional Trades Civil Defence Committee, a committee appointed by the Lord Privy Seal to assist and advise him on matters affecting the constructional industry in connection with civil defence. This committee, among other things, advised upon the model form of prime cost contract for air raid shelter and similar emergency work, which was issued by the Ministry of Home Security early in 1940.

Sir William M. Baird (Vice-President of the Institution) has been appointed Chairman of the Special Scottish Sub-Committee which has been appointed to advise the Constructional Trades Civil Defence Committee for Great Britain on questions pertaining to Scotland.

A Red Cross Agriculture Fund Committee has been instituted in connection with the Red Cross and St. John Fund of the Lord Mayor of London. The Chairman of the Agriculture Fund is Sir Charles Howell Thomas (Hon. Member) formerly Permanent Secretary of the Ministry of Agriculture; and the Institution is represented on this committee by the President and Mr. Robert Cobb (Past President).

At the request of the main committee, an Auctioneers' Sub-Committee has been appointed, consisting of representatives of the Auctioneers' and Estate Agents' Institute, the Incorporated Society of Auctioneers and of the Institution. This sub-committee is co-operating with the National Farmers' Union in setting up a Red Cross Agriculture Committee for each county.

The Central Register for National Service.

The assistance rendered by the Institution in the preparation of this register was described in the last annual report. Since the outbreak of war, the Central Register has been used to the fullest extent wherever the services of technical and professional persons have been required by government and other departments. In selecting for submission to employers the names of candidates who appear suitable for the posts notified, the Central Register authorities are assisted by panels of experts representative of the professions concerned. Up to date orders involving some 520 appointments in the surveyors' profession have been notified to the Central Register and dealt with by the appropriate panel on which the Institution is represented. Against these orders over 1,200 names of members who have volunteered under this scheme have been submitted, and a comparable number of appointments made.

Membership.

The comparative tables giving statistics of membership are given below :—

It will be seen that there is a decrease in the total membership figure as compared with last year owing to the large apparent reduction in the number of Probationers. No new Probationers have been enrolled during the Session as a result of passing the examinations, which in 1940 are being held in June and July instead of the usual month of March. The apparent decrease should be rectified next session when, if the examinations in 1941 are held at the usual time in March, there will be a double enrolment of Probationers.

McEwan-Waghorn, London (1922); Mr. Henry Riley, London (1922); and Mr. N. A. Webb, Chester (1927).

Standing and Special Committees.

Seven meetings of the Council, four meetings of the Commission of the Council, 63 meetings of the standing and special committees, and six conferences on matters of professional interest have been held during the year under review. In addition, on 14 occasions since the outbreak of war, the Chairmen of standing committees have attended at the Institution to make decisions upon routine matters which were awaiting the consideration of their committees.

During the session much of the time of the standing committees has been devoted to the large volume of emergency legislation, much of which is of special interest to members.

The decision of the Government to postpone the date of the operation of the valuation lists gave rise to certain difficulties which the Council brought to the notice of the Minister of Health. The Council were joined by the Committee of the Rating Surveyors' Association in making representations to the Ministry on this subject, and the memorandum which the Council had forwarded to the Ministry was reinforced by a meeting at the Ministry when the matters referred to were discussed with the representatives of the two professional bodies. The memorandum was published in the Journal for January.

Further steps were taken later on the same matter as the consequence of an amendment moved by the Minister of Health to the Rating (Postponement of Valuations) Bill which was introduced in the early part of this year. The object of this amendment was declared to be the improvement of the existing rating law in London, but it seemed to most rating surveyors that in fact the amendment did no more than re-state the existing case law and statute law on the subject. Steps were immediately taken to bring these views to the Minister's notice. The part played by the Institution in this subject is fully set out in the Journal for April, from which it will be seen that the Chairman of the Parliamentary Committee, Mr. Geoffrey L. Vigers, was invited to attend a meeting with the Minister, together with a group of Members of Parliament, for a private discussion. This meeting was one of the most important, from the Institution's point of view, which has been held for many years, and was the subject of a personal message of appreciation from the Minister.

The omission of the Compensation (Defence) Act, 1939, to allow compensation for the disturbance of business attached to an occupation was the subject of representations made to the Treasury by the Council, who, in the hope that amending legislation would be introduced to remedy this injustice, offered the assistance of the Institution in advising upon a fair basis of compensation. In The Times a letter was published over the President's signature calling public attention to the need for the amendment of the Act. A memorandum which the Council submitted to the Treasury was published in the Journal for March, together with correspondence which passed between the Treasury and the Institution on the subject.

In the early part of the session the Institution was invited to comment on the Government's proposals for increasing the potential productivity of the land with special reference to wartime needs. Later, when the ploughing-up programme had been introduced, representatives of the Institution, together with representatives of the other professional organisations concerned, attended a series of meetings convened by the Ministry of Agriculture to discuss the question of compensation to the landowner for loss incurred through a compulsory ploughing up order. At the conclusion of these meetings the Ministry issued a statement which was reproduced in the Journal for February.

The Mining Committee have kept watch on various questions arising under the Coal Act, 1938, including the question of fees for valuations.

The movement initiated by the Institution to further the science of land surveying has been affected, like the corresponding international movement, by the outbreak of the war and the consequent necessity, both in the Dominions and Colonies as well as in Great Britain, of devoting attention to matters of a more urgent character.

Until retarded by the war, the movement continued to show progress ; gifts were being regularly received for the Survey Centre ; and an approach had been made to the Colonial Office concerning a suggestion that the Institution should expand its examination syllabus, to include a central imperial examination in land surveying subjects, other than those of a local application, such as law.

Special Diploma Holders' Sections.

The Rating Diploma Holders' Section held a general meeting on the 6th July, 1939, when Mr. D. F. Mills (Professional Associate) presented for discussion his paper on "Some notes on the application of the contractor's test." Owing to the outbreak of war the Section did not hold its annual meeting in October last. Mr. J. R. Toovey (Fellow) and Mr. George V. Nye (Fellow) are continuing to hold office as Chairman and Honorary Secretary respectively.

The Town Planning Diploma Section enjoyed a further increase in numbers during the session under review, but the outbreak of war necessarily curtailed their activities in common with those of others interested in town and country planning. A small sub-committee was appointed to deal with any urgent planning questions that might arise.

National Defence Contribution.

In order to secure an official determination of whether mortgage valuations were a professional service within the special meaning of Section 19 of the Finance Act, 1937, the Council decided that an appeal by a firm of chartered surveyors against their assessment to National Defence Contribution should be supported out of Institution funds. A case raising this issue was specially selected (Gale, Heath & Sneath v. H.M. Inspector of Taxes). The appeal succeeded before the Special Commissioners of Income Tax, whose findings were reported in the Journal for March, 1940, and were satisfactory.

The Crown have since required the Commissioners to state a case for the opinion of the High Court, and this is still pending.

Reorganisation of the Institution's Examinations.

Reference was made in the last annual report to the fact that the professional examinations were being reorganised, and that the work of the Special (Examinations Reorganisation) Committee had been completed and a report submitted to the Council.

The final report of the committee was adopted in the early part of this session. The revised rules and syllabus for the professional examinations include the regrouping of the examination subjects so as to provide three progressive and balanced tests in the form of a First Examination, an Intermediate Examination and a Final Examination. They also provide for a progressive legal syllabus restricted to the subjects with which a surveyor, as distinct from a lawyer, requires to be familiar ; the introduction of the elements of law into the First Examination ; the raising of the standard of the Outdoor Examination in Surveying and Levelling, and its decentralisation to five centres in England in addition to the London centres. A large measure of revision in the examination syllabus as a whole has been undertaken, and the rules contain provisions for the separation of the Direct Fellowship Examination from the ordinary professional examinations of the Institution, and the holding of the Direct Fellowship Examination in alternate years. Notable additions to the rules are to be found in the requirement that all candidates for the First Examination must have been, or have applied to be, enrolled as students of the Institution ; and in the requirement that future candidates for the Final Examination must have been engaged in approved training for four years prior to sitting for the examination, of which period two years at least must have been spent in the office of a surveyor approved by the Council. The new rules of examination will be brought into force for the professional examinations to be held in 1941 and the revised syllabus in successive stages as follows : the syllabus for the First Examination in 1941 ; for the Intermediate Examination in 1942 ; and for the Final Examination in 1943.

In the performance of the duty referred to it, the special committee, including the meetings of its six sub-committees, held twenty-five meetings and was representative of the four sub-divisions of the profession. The special committee was presided over by the President,

Mr. Oswald Healing, and the sincere thanks of the Council are due to him and the members of the committee on the completion of their arduous task.

The Examinations.

On the outbreak of war it was decided to suspend the Institution's examinations, but in the light of developments the Council felt justified later in reversing this decision, with the result that the Institution's examinations will be held in wartime as far as conditions allow.

As it was impossible to hold the 1940 examinations in the usual months of January and March, it was decided that the Preliminary Examination and Special Test should be held in April and the Professional Examinations in June and July. It was also thought advisable to extend the policy of decentralising the examinations to a number of provincial centres. It is impossible, therefore, to include in this report the usual statistics giving the numbers of those successful in the various examinations. Those figures will be published in a later issue of the Journal, together with the names of the prize-winners. Nearly 1,700 candidates in all have applied to sit for the 1940 examinations.

The Honorary Secretaries of the Branches concerned were asked to co-operate in conducting the examinations at the selected provincial centres in Bristol, Birmingham, Cambridge, Leeds and Manchester. Their response, as was to be expected, was ready and immediate.

Evidence for the Institution has been given at a series of test cases heard by an umpire appointed under the National Service (Armed Forces) Act to hear appeals on questions of postponement of military service for students. The umpire has decided that both Intermediate Examinations of the Institution as well as the Final are vital to a student's career entitling him, provided he fulfils the other prescribed conditions, to a postponement of his liability for military service.

During this session the Council successfully applied to the Charity Commissioners for an amalgamation and variation of the Trust Deeds controlling the Daniel Watney Bequest and Prize Funds. Under the new scheme the Council are given wider powers for awarding a prize for proficiency in the science and practice of forestry, or, failing a suitable candidate in that branch of professional work, for proficiency in some other branch of surveying to be selected by the Council.

As the result of a bequest to the Institution by the late Mr. Robert Irwin Barr (Fellow) the name of that member will be commemorated in a prize to be awarded to the Scottish candidate obtaining the highest percentage of marks in the First and Intermediate Examinations.

The examinations for the Special Diplomas in Rating and Town Planning were held in June, 1939.

Ten candidates sat for the Rating Examination, and the following were declared successful: Messrs. C. I. V. Anderson (Northampton), Winston Hand (Sheffield), F. G. Ing (Warwick), D. M. Leech (Sheffield), Walter Randell (Folkestone), and S. S. Williams (London).

In the Town Planning Examination four candidates were successful and were awarded the diploma. They were Messrs. R. C. W. Davey, M.Sc. (East Grinstead), H. C. Delves (Beaconsfield), F. G. H. Heuser (Sheffield), and H. L. Nicholson (Gloucester).

The Professional (Tithe) Committee.

Throughout the session the Professional (Tithe) Committee have kept a close watch on the effect of apportionment and redemption on collection work. The effect, too, of war emergency regulations on this work has had the careful consideration of the committee. The whole position was reviewed by the committee at a meeting in April, following which representations were made to the Tithe Redemption Commission with a view to easing the work of collection and the expenses involved.

Special mention should be made here of the services being rendered by Mr. Richard Trumper (Fellow), the Honorary Secretary of the Professional (Tithe) Committee, who, apart from administering the affairs of the committee, is continually active on behalf of individual collectors and whose wide experience in all matters pertaining to tithe collection is always at the disposal of the Tithe Commission as well as the collectors.

The International Federation of Surveyors.

As might be expected, the war has curtailed the activities of the International Federation of Surveyors in spite of the fact that the administration is in the hands of a non-belligerent country, namely Italy, whither the headquarters of the Federation were transferred from the Institution in 1938.

The annual meeting of the Permanent Committee, arranged to take place in Zurich from 16th—19th September, 1939, was cancelled on the outbreak of war, and although an attempt is being made by the Italian secretariat to keep the movement alive by correspondence, it is unlikely that further international meetings will be held until the return of peace.

An official report of the proceedings of the VIth International Congress of Surveyors, 1938, mentioned in last year's annual report of the Council, has been published in Rome.

The Branches.

Owing to the war the majority of Branch meetings and their attendant social functions were cancelled. The President was thus largely deprived of the opportunity, to which he had greatly looked forward, of personal contacts with country members, and of seeing for himself the general working of the Branch organisation. At those few Branches, however, which the President was able to visit he was impressed by the deep and helpful interest taken in the work of the profession and the part being played by the profession in the present emergency. The Branch committees continued to meet throughout the session to consider routine matters and any other matters of special interest referred to them by the Council. To the Chairmen, Honorary Secretaries and members of those committees the Council wish to express their thanks for their unfailing co-operation throughout the session.

The Library and Collections.

Mr. D. R. Wheatley, the Librarian of the Institution, retired from his appointment in April, 1940, on reaching the age limit for service. He had held his appointment for forty-one years. His knowledge of the literature of the profession combined with a natural charm of manner, had earned him a well-deserved popularity among members in all parts, and he goes into retirement with the good wishes of his many friends.

Over 1,300 members have used the Library during the past year. The decrease in the number as compared with last year is doubtless largely accounted for by the black-out and other war causes.

The number of books which has been issued to members totals 851, another decrease for which the war is responsible.

Apart from annuals, periodicals and the publications of other professional societies, some 159 books have been added to the Library and about 40 to the Loan Collection.

Owing to the requirements of other departments of the Institution for floor space, much of the material of the Forestry Collection has had to be stored temporarily. A large collection of planks is on loan to the Royal Agricultural College at Cirencester.

The Institution arranged exhibits at two agricultural shows during the session; those were at the Royal Agricultural Show and the Centenary Show of the Royal Agricultural Society at Windsor. Both exhibits were in non-competitive classes. The exhibit at Windsor, which received a special commendation from the Judge, was visited by His Majesty the King and several other members of the Royal Family.

The Publications.

Although the papers which, before the outbreak of war, had been arranged for the earlier part of the session, were not read at meetings, they have been published in the Journal. These papers, which have created a considerable amount of interest were :—

The Civil Defence Act, 1939, by Mr. H. W. J. Powell (Fellow).

The Valuation and Management of Flats, by Mr. Anthony Clapham (Professional Associate).

A joint paper on the Economic and Technical Aspects of Air Survey, by Major C. R. Robbins, M.C., D.F.C., and Mr. Michael Spender.

Mention must also be specially made of other valuable articles which have appeared under the names of members, particularly those by Captain Montagu Evans, M.C. (Fellow), Mr. Guy Biscoe (Fellow), Mr. H. Brian Eve (Professional Associate), Lt.-Col. S. H. Page, C.M.G. (Fellow), Professor J. F. Baker, and Mr. Reginald Davey (Fellow).

Separate legal memoranda on the Civil Defence Act, 1939, and the Landlord and Tenant (War Damage) Act, 1939, have been prepared by Mr. H. F. Bidder, D.S.O. (Associate) on the instructions of the Council, and circulated to all members. This step was justified by the novelty of the legislation in both instances.

The provisions of the Landlord and Tenant (War Damage) Act will only apply to modify the relations between landlords and tenants in cases where property held under lease is damaged by enemy action or in repelling enemy action, and not otherwise. The fact that, as yet, there has fortunately been no need to operate the Act will not, it is hoped, lead members to overlook its existence or the memorandum upon it which they have received.

On the 6th May, 1940, a General Meeting at the Institution was held to discuss the Compensation (Defence) Act, 1939.

The subject was introduced by Mr. C. Gerald Eve (Past President) followed by Mr. Geoffrey L. Vigers (Vice-President), and some seventeen members and visitors took part in the subsequent discussion. Mr. Eve wound up the discussion and replied to the majority of questions which had been raised. The meeting was very well attended.

The opinion of learned Counsel was taken on certain questions which had arisen between building owners and contractors in the case of contracts entered into before the war and containing no provision for the adjustment of fluctuations in the rates of labour and the cost of materials. The statement of case for Counsel and his very full opinion on these questions appeared in the Journal for January, 1940, and has since been reprinted in leaflet form.

Annual Country Meeting.

The Annual Country Meeting of 1939 was held in Nottingham, the Nottinghamshire, Lincolnshire and Derbyshire Branch being responsible for the arrangements. The programme included a reception by the Lord Mayor and Sheriff of Nottingham in the Council House, followed by a Dance; the reading of papers by Messrs. J. C. Blossom, B.Sc. and S. M. Makings, both of the Midland Agricultural College, and Mr. J. Holland Walker, M.B.E., F.S.A., F.R.HIST.S.; and excursions to the Beeston Factory of Boots Pure Drug Co., Ltd., Newstead Abbey, Haddon Hall, Southwell Cathedral, Bilsthorpe Colliery, Kirklington Hall and other places of interest.

The special thanks of the Council are due to the Lord Mayor, Sheriff and Corporation of Nottingham, for the generous hospitality with which they honoured the Institution on the occasion of their visit, the Boots Pure Drug Co., Ltd., Major Harry German (Fellow), the Stanton Ironworks Co., Ltd., the Venerable Archdeacon Hales, Lady Robinson, the Duke of Rutland, the readers of the papers and others, all of whom had a considerable share in contributing to the success of the meeting. Special mention must also be made of the services rendered by the Chairman and Honorary Secretary of the Nottinghamshire, Lincolnshire and Derbyshire Branch, Mr. W. R. Brackett (Fellow) and other members of the reception committee, whose hard work and enthusiasm in attending to the many arrangements were largely responsible for the acknowledged success of the meeting.

The Junior Organisation.

The activities of the Junior Organisation have been suspended for the period of the war, a resolution to that effect being regretfully confirmed by the Council on the 2nd October, 1939.

For the session Mr. H. Brian Eve and Mr. J. D. Russell-Davis had been appointed Chairman and Honorary Secretary respectively. Despite the cessation of Junior Organisation activities, the President and the 1913 Committee Club kindly consented to award their prizes as usual, the President's Prize being won by Mr. Richard Lamb (Professional Associate) for his paper entitled "Real Estate as an Investment," and the Ryde Memorial Prize by Miss Molly Stanbridge (Woman House Property Manager) for her paper on "Management Problems of a Municipal Housing Estate." Both these papers have appeared in the Journal.

The summer meeting, the only event of the session, was held on the 7th July, 1939, and consisted of a visit by river launch to the Ford Motor Company's Works at Dagenham. Ninety members and their guests attended the outing.

Appointments Register.

The uncertainty of affairs during the period up to the outbreak of war had a serious effect on the work of the Appointments Register with the result that from May to September, 1939, so far as members' enquiries were concerned, very few vacancies were notified. Local authorities seemed to have completed their main defence requirements, but the position was relieved to a considerable degree by increasing demands for technical assistance from government departments, more especially those responsible for the fighting services. Upon the outbreak of war the Central Register for National Service began to operate and from that time all the personnel required by government departments has been recruited through that register. A duplicate of the section for surveyors is kept at the Institution. and the Institution's Appointments

Register is used in close co-operation with the Central Register, 216 names having been put forward.

In addition to the normal work of the Appointments Register, a number of enquiries have been received to assist in recruiting technical assistants in the defence services. Over 200 members have been recommended for these appointments, but the details may not be disclosed. A careful record is being maintained so that after the war members may be informed of the work done in this direction.

There is a small but nevertheless noticeable increase in the number of openings in private firms, especially those concerned in the management of property, due to the calling up for military service of junior technical assistants. In the unfortunate event of the war continuing for any length of time, it is hoped to be able to render assistance in this direction to those members who are disengaged but whose services are not likely to be required in work connected with the national emergency. Members requiring assistants in these circumstances are asked to notify their requirements so that full use of this service may be obtained by their professional colleagues.

At the time of the issue of the last annual report there were 98 members' names on the Appointments Register ; to-day there are 115 of whom 22 are disengaged. While this indicates to some extent the effects of recent events, the figures should be considered in relation to the total membership of the Institution which is 9,400, and the fact that in the last twelve months the following appointments have been made :—

Land Agency.	22
Valuation.	47
Building.	18
Quantities.	26

From these figures it will be seen that names on the Appointments Register have been changing, although, unfortunately, the net result shows an increase in the number seeking appointments.

The enquiries from members of the public, solicitors, and other outside sources have been reasonably maintained, the names of surveyors in 166 cases having been recommended. Partnership enquiries have dropped considerably in number. The number of firms who have intimated their willingness to take pupils has decreased from 167 to 115. This, coupled with the effects of the National Service (Armed Forces) Act, 1939, and the fact that many parents are finding the question of premium to be a difficult one, has interfered considerably with the use of this section of the Register. In all, 118 enquiries of this nature were made during the year.

In general it may be said that the demand for quantity surveyors and men with agricultural knowledge has been fairly persistent; and for building surveyors not so pressing, but steady. The Government demands have been responsible for most of the valuers' appointments.

It must be reported with regret that many members do not notify headquarters when they have been successful in obtaining an appointment. This tends to prejudice prospective employers against the register and consequently does not assist the other members whose names remain on it.

Honours, Awards, Public and Honorary Appointments.

The following honours were conferred upon members by His Majesty the King during the year under review:—

Mr. C. W. Sleigh (Honorary Member)	...	...	C.B.E.
Mr. James Watt (Fellow)	...	...	C.B.E.
Mr. T. P. D. Murray (Fellow)	...	...	M.B.E.

Mr. W. F. McLaren, J.P. (Fellow) has been appointed a member of the Scottish Land Court by His Majesty the King on the recommendation of the Secretary of State for Scotland.

Sir Alan Hutchings, K.B.E. (Professional Associate) has been appointed Director-General of Voluntary Organisations, an office which has been set up under Government auspices to co-ordinate voluntary effort for the provision of comforts to H.M. Forces.

Major R. F. Brebner (Fellow) has been appointed Chairman of the Highland and Agricultural Society of Scotland.

The Royal Commission on the Distribution of the Industrial Population, of which Mr. Sydney A. Smith (Fellow) was a member, published their report during the session.

Mr. Harold Williams, O.B.E. (Fellow) has been appointed to represent the Institution on the London University Board of Studies in Estate Management.

Mr. J. Kavanagh (Fellow) and Mr. E. J. Anthony (Fellow) have been appointed to represent the Éire Branch of the Institution on a National Council of the Building Industry in Ireland.

Mr. H. James King (Member of Council) and Mr. S. Vvyvian Hicks (Fellow) were appointed to represent the Institution on respectively the Architects' Registration Council of the United Kingdom and on the Admission Committee of that Council for the year beginning March, 1940.

Mr. Dendy Watney (Past President) has been appointed as a member of the Tribunal of Appeal to be constituted under Section 109 of the London Building Acts (Amendment) Act, 1939.

Financial Statement.

The accounts for the year ended 31st December, 1939, compare favourably with those of the previous year, there being a balance of income over expenditure of £58, as against an adverse balance of £108 1s. 9d. in 1938. The amounts of £1,561 7s. and £1,623 18s. 5d. were received as entrance fees and interest from investments respectively and placed to capital account.

THE SURVEYOR'S PROFESSION

HISTORICAL NOTE

Early history

The origins of the surveyor's profession are probably as old as civilisation itself. At any rate, there are indications that the professional ancestors of the quantity surveyor practised in early Egyptian times. In Bearsted's Egypt there appears an illustration of an obviously important personage who is depicted with a staff of office held horizontally in his right hand, and a long measuring rod, resting vertically upon the ground, in his left. This personage was known as the Chief Measurer of the Royal Works. Another early illustration shows two bricklayers at work, watched by a "taskmaster," who is seated on a brick with his measuring staff of a double cubit in length between his knees. It was the taskmaster's duty to supervise the building labourers and to measure their work as it proceeded. From these illustrations it is probably not rash to conclude that the quantity surveyor played his part in the building of the Pyramids.

Roman.

Of the existence of surveyors in early Roman times there is plenty of evidence. Originally called finitores, or markers of boundaries, they accompanied the bands that set out from the parent City-State on the Tiber to colonise those parts of conquered territories which by Roman custom were reserved to the State as public lands. Their duties were to apportion between the colonists such parts of the land as were not allotted to the gods for the building of temples, or retained by the colony as a whole to provide for the expenses of administration. Even in those times, a knowledge of the difference between good land and bad seems to have been a necessary qualification for the surveyor; for it is said that upon his Roman forefather devolved the responsibility of choosing only good ploughland and woodland for division between the colonists.

The measurement of land, or geometry in its original sense, was used as a practical art by the Romans from earliest times. It was applied especially to the laying out of military camps, and to the orientation of temples. A simple levelling contrivance known as the groma was commonly used by the military surveyors (antemensores) for siting and laying out the fortified camp which was invariably set up by the Roman troops after the day's march.

mensores.

In later Roman times the civilian surveyors—agrimensores, or field-measurers, as they were then called—formed a distinct profession and a recognised official class. They obtained instruction in practical geometry from recognised teachers—probably Greeks—and no doubt kept their technical knowledge up to date by studying the works of Frontinus, Epaphroditus, Vitruvius Rufus and the other writers on land surveying (gromatici). In these later times the practice of the agrimensores extended to the determination of boundaries between private estates and the settlement of disputes in that connection; and then, as now, they were either instructed by lawyers or called in by the owners themselves.

The
in the Middle Ages

In the Middle Ages, and for a considerable time afterwards, the term "surveyor" was commonly restricted to those who measured and prepared plans and maps (including road maps and itineraries) of the surface of the earth. There is evidence, however, that even then the technique of the profession extended to estate management and the valuation of land. In the Prologue to his Surveyinge (1523) Fitzherbert said: "It is necessary that every great estate should have a Surveyour that can extende, but, and bounde, and value them." And in 1583 Stubbes wrote: "When a gentleman . . . hath a farm . . . to let he causeth a Surveior to make strict inquirie what may be made of it."

In the Eighteenth Century.

But in the eighteenth century, and possibly because the greatest architect of all time bore the official appellation of Surveyor-General to His Majesty, we find the term constantly used as synonymous with architect. It is noteworthy that even to-day the architect in charge of Wren's greatest monument is known as the Surveyor to St. Paul's Cathedral.

Christopher Wren was, indeed, the surveyor par excellence. Combining, as he did, an expert knowledge of mathematics, astronomy and town planning (there must be few modern City workers who are not inconvenienced by the rejection of Wren's proposals for the redevelopment of London after the Great Fire) with his better-known qualities as a designer of buildings, he may fairly be claimed, both in fact and in name, as the first modern surveyor and as the pioneer who pointed the way towards the final development of the profession which he followed.

Surveyors'
Club, 1794.

During the last decade of the eighteenth century the first association of surveyors was formed. The Surveyors' Club, with its motto of "Grege Amicorum," was founded in 1794, and consisted at first of sixteen and later of twenty members, who for the most part were the surveyors and architects to the great City Companies of London. The Club still flourishes, and still confines its membership to those who practise as surveyors in the eighteenth-century sense of that term.

Development of the Profession.

The next sixty years saw the beginning and the development of the surveyor's profession as we know it to-day. The land enclosures, the Tithe Commutation Acts, and the renaissance of agriculture, coinciding, as they did, with the approach of the industrial revolution, the coming of the railways and the country-wide development which was necessary to provide for the speedily mounting population of these islands, combined to bring about far-reaching changes in the ownership and occupation of land throughout the country. The introduction of what was then an entirely new principle, the power to acquire land by compulsion for public improvements and essential public services, gave rise to complex and unfamiliar problems which called for special technical advice, and in many cases for adjudication by technical arbitrators. The persons who met that need were men who were skilled not only in the measurement, but also in the management and development of land, and in the appraisal of its values ; men, that is, who were described in the various land acquisition Acts of that time as "able, practical surveyors."

Quantity
Surveying.

The same era, or perhaps a little later, saw the birth of quantity surveying as a separate and recognised profession. Contractors invited to tender for building works needed, for the purpose of arriving at their estimates, detailed information as to the amounts of labour and materials required. That information was, and is still, obtained by measuring the work as shown on the architect's drawings or described in his specification, and by embodying the result in what came to be known as a "bill of quantities." The quantity surveyor, in addition to preparing the bill of quantities, was soon called upon to exercise various responsible functions of a quasi-judicial nature in connection with the administration of a building contract, and he now enjoys a recognised standing among the professions.

Definition of the Surveying
Profession.

Space does not permit of a detailed description of the many and varied duties which the surveyor is able to perform. The profession is defined in the Royal Charter of The Chartered Surveyors' Institution as "The art of determining the value of all descriptions of landed, mineral and house property, and of the various interests therein ; the practice of managing and developing estates ; and the science of admeasuring and delineating the physical features of the earth, and of measuring and estimating artificers' work."

Modern
Surveying
Practice.

The practice of the modern surveyor is divided roughly, into five branches, namely, land agency, urban agency, quantity surveying, building surveying, and mining surveying.

Commenting upon the diversity of the surveyor's profession, His Royal Highness the Duke of York, when attending the Diamond Jubilee Banquet of The Chartered Surveyors' Institution in 1928, said : "The surveyor touches the ordinary life of the public at innumerable points. Upon those who are concerned with the management of the great country estates, we rely to a large extent for the production of our food and timber. Our housing, our trade and commerce, depend in many respects upon the advice of the surveyor trained in the difficult art of valuation; in town planning and in the development of land for building, in matters of sanitation, taxation, rating, and the management of mineral property, the surveyor is brought into contact with our daily lives. He is, in fact, with us almost from our cradles to our graves. Nor must I fail to mention the building surveyor and the quantity surveyor, the former the physician of bricks and mortar, the latter, as it were, the chemist who analyses in minutest detail the component parts of the structure that is to arise."

Origins
of the Chartered Surveyors'
Institution.

By the middle 'sixties of the last century three professional clubs were in existence. In addition to the Surveyors' Club, to which reference has already been made, the Land Surveyors' Club and the Surveyors' Association had come into being in 1834 and 1864 respectively. Membership of these two clubs, though it consisted largely of surveyors concerned in the management of country estates and in general practice, is not now restricted to any particular branch of the profession. These three associations of professional men may, perhaps, be looked upon as the direct ancestors of The Institution.

The need at that time for a distinctly professional society of surveyors was being more and more felt, and both the opportunity and the materials for its foundation were almost ready to hand. Following upon the far-reaching developments of the mid-Victorian era, Parliament was full to overflowing with Private Bills for public improvements of all kinds, and Westminster was the frequent meeting-place of surveyors who came thither, either in support or opposition, from all parts of the country.

First Meeting and Annual Dinner.

In March, 1868, a general meeting of surveyors was held in London, and decided to form a professional association to be called "The Institution of Surveyors." The requisite preliminaries having been completed, the new body came officially into being three months later, and its members celebrated the occasion by holding an inaugural dinner. This was held in the Cannon Street Hotel on 1st July, 1868, and was attended by a hundred persons.

Royal
Charters
and Patronage.

In 1881, the Surveyors' Institution, as it was then called, was incorporated by Royal Charter. A Supplementary Charter was granted in 1921, and in the same year His Majesty King George V honoured The Institution by accepting the office of Patron. By permission of the Privy Council, the name "Chartered Surveyors' Institution" was adopted in 1930.

THE CHARTERED SURVEYORS' BENEVOLENT FUND (INCORPORATED)

The Chartered Surveyors' Benevolent Fund was founded, largely through the instrumentality of the late Mr. Daniel Watney, in 1899, and was incorporated in 1901. The resources are maintained by voluntary subscriptions raised almost wholly from within the membership of the Institution, and are available for the assistance of members and their dependents who have fallen on evil days.

The invested capital of the Fund is more than £30,000, and over £40,000 has been expended in relief, one valuable form of which is the provision of education for the orphan children of members. Assistance is also given to those in temporary need through ill-health, and eighteen annuities are provided for those who by reason of age are unable to support themselves.

RULES OF PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT FOR OBSERVANCE BY CHARTERED SURVEYORS

I.—RELATIONSHIP WITH OTHER PROFESSIONS AND OCCUPATIONS.

- (a) No member shall engage in or be connected with any occupation or business which in the opinion of the Council is inconsistent with membership of the Institution.
- (b) No member shall directly or indirectly allow or agree to allow any person, other than a member of his own profession, to participate in his remuneration.
- (c) No member shall engage in work recognised as being properly that of a solicitor.

II.—MEMBERS' RESPONSIBILITIES.

- (a) In order that members shall accept full personal liability for advice given to clients, they will not be permitted to convert their firms into limited liability companies unless special circumstances, approved by the Council, exist.
- (b) Members who are principals will be held responsible to the Council for the acts of their partners and staffs so far as they relate to matters coming within the scope of their practice.

III.—SALES AND LETTINGS.

- (a) No member shall, either directly or indirectly, in writing or verbally, seek instructions for business which he knows, or with ordinary care could have ascertained, is in the hands of another agent; nor, in other cases, without a definite intimation that if another agent has already been retained, instructions can only be accepted from, and as sub-agent to, that agent.

A member who seeks instructions to deal with a property on which another agent's board or notice is exhibited will be deemed to have disregarded knowingly this injunction.

Canvassing by personal call or by telephone by a member or one of his staff is prohibited.

- (b) No member shall offer any financial inducement to secure instructions, nor shall a member charge, for effecting a sale, purchase, letting or taking, an amount of commission which in the opinion of the Council would be unfair to other members.

V.—ADVERTISEMENTS.

Members shall ensure that advertisements and other public announcements are not such as would bring the Institution into disrepute.

VI.—GENERALLY.

No member shall conduct himself in such a manner as to prejudice his professional status or the reputation of the Institution.

 - (b) If the contract or order does not exceed £2,000 the percentage is to be 10 per cent. in the case of works costing £100 graduated to 6 per cent. in the case of works costing £2,000 as the special character of such works may render appropriate.

XIV.—PREPARING BILLS OF QUANTITIES AND VALUING WORK EXECUTED.

The Scale of Charges for the preparation of Bills of Quantities set out in 1. (a) below is an over-all Scale, based upon the inclusion of all provisional amounts which do not normally call for measurement.

The measurement and valuation of variations and the preparation of statements of account at the conclusion of the works are separate services for which the scale set out in 1. (b) provides.

1. LUMP SUM CONTRACTS : ARCHITECTURAL WORK.

When acting in the capacity of a quantity surveyor in connection with :—

(a) Taking out and preparing Bills of Quantities :—

(i) BASIC SCALE.

2½ per cent. upon the estimated cost of the work up to £10,000.

2 per cent. upon the balance above £10,000.

(ii) WORKS OF ALTERATION.

The charges in sub-paragraph (i) shall be increased by ½ per cent. in respect of works of alteration.

(iii) GENERALLY.

Fees are to be calculated upon the basis of the accepted tender for the whole of the work. In the event of no tender being accepted, fees are to be calculated upon the basis of the lowest original bona fide tender received. In the event of no tender being received, the fees are to be calculated upon a reasonable valuation of the work, based upon the original Bill of Quantities.

If for any reason a tender, when received, is reduced before acceptance, fees are to be calculated upon the unreduced amount of such tender; and an additional fee, calculated in the same manner as is prescribed in paragraph (b) below with respect to fees for the measurement of variations, is chargeable for arriving at the amount by which the tender is reduced.

In calculating the amount on which fees are payable, the total of the Credit Bill (if any) and the total of any alternative Bills are to be added, but any Omission Bill forming part of an Alternative Bill is not to be included unless actual measurement is necessary to arrive at the Omission.

The cost of lithographing or printing the Bills of Quantities is not included in the above Scale, but is to be charged in addition at the net amount payable to the lithographer or printer.

(b) Measuring and making up accounts of variations upon Contracts, including pricing and agreeing totals with contractors.

2½ per cent. upon the amount of the additions, and 1½ per cent. upon the amount of the omissions, less the total of Provisional sums or work omitted as a whole.

No charge shall be made for the adjustment of provisional lump sums in cases where the exercise of professional skill is not involved.

(c) Taking out and preparing Bills of Quantities, or measuring for and making up accounts of decoration contracts :—

2 per cent. above the rates in the foregoing paragraphs.

(d) Estimating upon Bills of Quantities :—

½ per cent.

(e) Preparing approximate Quantities and estimating upon same :—

½ per cent. upon the estimated cost, or, alternatively, a charge to be based upon the time involved.

NOTE.—In cases where any of the materials used in construction are supplied by the building owner, the percentage charge to be made upon the estimated or actual value thereof.

(f) Surveying works in progress, taking particulars and reporting for Interim Certificates :—

$\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. upon the amount of each valuation less the amount of any previous valuation or valuations upon which fees shall have been paid, or alternatively, a charge to be based upon the time involved.

(g) Taking particulars on site and writing specifications for works of alteration or repair, including supervision if required :—

$7\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. upon the amount expended, or alternatively, a charge to be based upon the time involved.

Preparing, pricing and agreeing schedules of prices :—

A charge to be based upon the time involved.

Measuring under Schedule and making up accounts, including pricing and agreeing totals :—

$2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. upon the gross amount of the Account.

The above percentage applies only to the complete measurement and valuation of the buildings or building operations when undertaken as a whole and included in one account. When the measurement proceeds by stages involving the preparation of periodical bills, then the percentage charge shall be increased by $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

NOTE.—In cases where any of the materials used in construction are supplied by the building owner, the percentage charge to be made upon the estimated or actual value thereof.

III. PRIME COST CONTRACTS.

Checking prime costs in "Cost plus Profit" Contracts and making up final accounts of works executed :—

$1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. except on work necessitating measurement which is to be paid for at the rates previously laid down.

IV. CIVIL ENGINEERING WORK.

Generally speaking, the charges for services in relation to work which can be classed as Civil Engineering work, are, as regards the percentages, to be half those for Architectural work, but the same as the latter in respect of charges based upon time.

V. LITIGATION AND ARBITRATION.

For qualifying to give evidence; settling proofs, conferences with Solicitors and Counsel; attendance in the Courts or before Arbitrators, or other tribunals; and for other services in connection with litigation and arbitration the charges are to be based upon the time involved, but are in no case to be less than a minimum of £5 5s. per day of not exceeding six hours.

EXTRACTS FROM THE PRINCIPLES WHICH MUST GOVERN CHARTERED QUANTITY SURVEYORS IN INTERPRETING SCALE 14 OF THE SCHEDULE OF PROFESSIONAL CHARGES.

The Chartered Quantity Surveyor in practice is governed by established customs accepted and observed by the Surveying profession, and more particularly by the Charter and By-laws of the Institution which render him liable in the case of unprofessional conduct to reprimand, suspension, or expulsion at the discretion of the Council.

A Quantity Surveyor is remunerated solely by his professional fees, and is debarred from any other source of remuneration in connection with the works and duties entrusted to him. A Quantity Surveyor must not accept any work which involves the giving or receiving of any discounts, gifts, or commissions whatsoever.

Quantity Surveyors may not compete with another on the basis of fees, and Chartered Quantity Surveyors must take reasonable precautions not to contravene the principle, e.g. by an intimation to the prospective client that if other surveyors are being asked to quote in competition, the offer of services is withdrawn.
